

Nikki Haley: Republican Presidential candidate

February 28, 2023

OP ED in The New York Post: In the OP ED, Nikki Haley said, “Backing American allies and friends like Israel and Ukraine is smart. Sending our tax dollars to enemies isn’t.”

She said that USA has given more than $ 1 billion in aid to Iraq, which is aligned with ‘murderous thugs’ in Iran, who routinely shout ‘Death to America’.

She said she would stop sending aid to Pakistan, where more than a dozen terrorist organizations are residing. She pointed out that USA was sending aid to China for “ridiculous” environmental programs. She added that our foreign-aid policies are stuck in the past. In the OP ED, she wrote. “They typically operate on autopilot, with no consideration for the conduct of the countries that receive our aid.”

Nikki Haley has previously served as ambassador to the United Nations (January 2017 to December 2018) under the Trump administration and as Governor of South Carolina (2011-17).

Haley was born Nimarata Nikki Randhawa in Bamberg, South Carolina, to immigrant Sikh parents from Punjab, India. Her father, Ajit Singh Randhawa, and her mother, Raj Kaur Randhawa, emigrated to the United States from Amritsar District, Punjab, India. Namrata was known by her middle name, Nikki, a Punjabi name, from her earliest years.
